Phoenix, AZ – Molera Alvarez, a minority-owned government and public affairs firm, celebrates 20 years of business in Arizona. Founders Jaime A. Molera and Ruben E. Alvarez, and the Molera Alvarez team, have a long history of implementing their public affairs expertise to achieve significant milestones, giving the firm unique insight into education, business, non-profit, and government entities. Founded in May 2003, the team has over a century of government affairs experience.

The firm’s accomplishments include leading the way to expand Arizona’s Medicaid population, allowing the state to draw down more than $1.2 billion in new federal funding, as well as overseeing the legislative effort to help secure funding to expand the University of Arizona’s College of Medicine in Phoenix. Additionally, Molera Alvarez guides companies in various industries through the primary stages of global business development. For example, the firm has served as the international trade representative for the City of Phoenix, Arizona, and the City of Wichita, Kansas.

“I’m proud of the work that our firm has done building relationships and helping to shape public policy in Arizona,” said Jaime A. Molera, co-founding partner of Molera Alvarez. “Our team works hard for our clients, and the fact that we are celebrating 20 years of service is a testament to our dedication and ability to provide results.”

Molera Alvarez has far-reaching experience forging bi-partisan support for legislative and statewide proposals. On issues ranging from health care, water policy, banking, K-12 education funding, university construction financing, state trust land, state budget negotiations, and technological advancement, Molera Alvarez has been associated with most of Arizona’s major public policy issues for two decades. The firm is accomplished in connecting clients to decision-makers at the local, state, and federal levels.

“Over two decades, we forged bonds of trust with business and government leaders on both sides of the aisle and border,” said Ruben Alvarez, co-founder and managing partner of Molera Alvarez. “We pride ourselves on building relationships and helping our clients achieve their specific goals through targeted, multi-level strategies. This approach has led to our longevity and record of success.”

Molera Alvarez has served clients from Fortune 100 and 500 companies, higher education, K-12 education, healthcare, banking, Tribal gaming, infrastructure, nonprofits, international trade development, tourism, technology services, coalition building, and more.

Over the 20 years, Molera Alvarez has earned Arizona Hispanic Chamber of Commerce’s Entrepreneurs of the Year Award, Valle del Sol’s Latino Advocacy Champion Award, and has been recognized by Phoenix Business Journal as one of Arizona’s top government affairs firms.
